S.28(4) of the ITA 2010 does not require a trust which has at least one trustee who is a professional trustee, as defined therein, from filing a return if neither the trust or its beneficiaries have a liability to tax under the ITA 2010.

We declare that, to the best of our knowledge and belief:

1. that we have filed a return for all trusts for whom we act as a professional trustee that are obliged to file a return by virtue of having a liability to tax under the ITA 2010 or having beneficiaries liable to tax under the ITA 2010; and
2. that the trusts for whom we act as a professional trustee that have not filed a return is due to the trust not having a liability to tax under the ITA 2010 or having beneficiaries not being liable to tax under the ITA 2010.

(Please attach additional schedules as needed)

SECTION B - Distribution type

There is no pre-determined format in which your workings should be set out and you are welcome to provide these in whatever manner you wish. Please note however it is imperative that supporting calculations and schedules are clear, understandable and adhere to the requirements of the Income Tax Act 2010 (ITA 2010). We will need to check the accuracy of your return and therefore you are required to submit your calculations and schedules.

B (1) - Income or capital of the trust: guidance for workings and supporting calculations

- Accumulated income must be analysed between 'taxable' income, 'non-taxable' income and 'chargeable dividends' received. 'Taxable' income is income that is derived from chargeable sources of income under the ITA 2010, including net dividends (which are derived from income chargeable under ITA 2010). 'Non-taxable' income is any income that is derived from non-chargeable sources of income under the ITA 2010.
- The analysis referred to above will need to be done for each accounting period since 1 January 2011 and as an aggregate balance in respect of all earlier accounting periods (i.e. in order to determine the opening balances as at 1 January 2011).
- A distribution made by a trust should be matched against the income of the trust in the following order:
 - 1st - Taxed income of the year of assessment.
 - 2nd - Taxed income of preceding years of assessment since 1 January 2011 on a 'First In First Out' ('FIFO') basis.
 - 3rd - Non-taxed income of the year of assessment.
 - 4th - Non-taxed income of preceding years of assessment since 1 January 2011 on a 'First In First Out' ('FIFO') basis.
 - 5th - Capital of the trust.
- A distribution matched to income/capital should be proportionately split between the applicable beneficiaries on a pro rata basis.
- A beneficiary or beneficiaries that are liable to tax on a distribution received are entitled to a set-off against their liability not exceeding the tax paid on the trust.

B (2) - Use of trust asset by beneficiary: Guidance for workings and supporting calculations

The asset may be owned or leased by the trust or any person substantially controlled by the trust (as defined in schedule 4 of the ITA 2010). The benefit derived by a husband or wife from the occupation, under a life interest created under the will of either one of the other, of the principal matrimonial home occupied by both prior to the death of either one of them is not a distribution under the ITA 2010.

SECTION B - Distribution type (contd.)

Quantum of distribution on beneficiary - [1] if the asset is owned by the trust it is the cost to the trust of providing that same asset to the beneficiary on the open market and [2] if the asset is leased by the trust it is the cost to the trust of leasing that asset.

Documentary evidence in support of your cost claim referred to above must be submitted to this Office. The claim may be based on a similar or equivalent asset to the one made available for use. This Office may conduct enquiries as necessary in order to be satisfied with the declaration made.

B (3) - Loan to beneficiary: Guidance for workings and supporting calculations

Income received from a trust includes any loan made by the trust to a beneficiary of that trust or to any person connected with the beneficiary. The meaning of connected person is that given in paragraph 9 of schedule 4 of the ITA 2010.

The balance that should be included is the balance outstanding as at the end of the year of assessment for which this return is being filed.

SECTION C - Distribution schedule

- The full name and residential address of each beneficiary who is in receipt of income from the distribution of the trust should be provided. If the beneficiary is a corporate entity then please provide the registered office.
- The distribution schedule should specify whether the beneficiary is ordinarily resident ("R") or non-resident ("NR"). Only ordinarily resident beneficiaries are liable to tax on distributions received. The definition of ordinarily resident is set out in section 74 of the ITA 2010.
- The taxpayer reference of each beneficiary should be provided in the distribution schedule. If the beneficiary has not previously been registered with the Income Tax Office, this should be done immediately so that a reference may be allocated to them and they are correctly assessed to tax.
- A credit is provided to the beneficiary in respect of the tax already suffered on the income being distributed. Trusts are liable to tax at the standard rate of tax. The amount of credit allowed on the beneficiary is limited to the tax paid by the trust or the dividend credit utilised by the trust to set-off its tax liability.
- The gross income of the beneficiary is the amount received from the distribution including the tax credit (i.e. the amount on which the beneficiary will be assessed). The credit will be provided as a set-off once the beneficiary's own tax assessment is prepared.

In accordance with the provisions of section 59 of the Income Tax Act 2010 ("the Act") this return of dividends should be filed at the Income Tax Office within one month of the dividend being declared.

PART 1 - Analysis of distributable reserves per accounting period

The purpose of Table 1 is to enable the analysis of the company's distributable profits or reserves between those that have been derived from taxed or taxable income and non-taxed or non-taxable income, so that ultimately only a dividend from a taxed or taxable source of income will be chargeable in the hands of the beneficiary.

The chargeability of dividends based on the underlying source of income came into effect on 1 July 2005 and therefore is applicable to any accounting periods forming the basis of a year of assessment as from 2005/2006. Accounting periods corresponding to earlier years of assessment would not be required to analyse their distributable profits in such a manner unless the profits associated with these earlier periods were not liable to tax by virtue of other applicable legislation. Specific examples of other applicable legislation include the relevant provisions under (1) the Development Aid Act 1981; (2) the Companies (Taxation and Concessions) Act 1983; and (3) the Parent and Subsidiary Company Rules 2008.

Guidance on the completion of Table 1SECTION 1

You are required to enter those accounting periods in which there are retained profits or reserves available for distribution. It is possible to accumulate past retained profits or reserves available for distribution in those instances where no analysis of these are required. The amount of profits or reserves available for distribution for an accounting period will be the profit generated in that accounting period.

SECTION 2

You must analyse these retained profits or reserves on a proportional basis based on the ratio of chargeable income to total income for each accounting period, in accordance with the provisions of the Act. This can be determined using the following formula for each respective accounting period:

$$\text{Proportional income ratio ("R")} = \frac{\text{Income chargeable to tax in the accounting period}}{\text{Total income for the accounting period}}$$

The income chargeable to tax must be determined in accordance with any specific exemptions for the applicable year of assessment.

The ratio [R] must then be applied to the total distributable profits or reserves available for distribution ("D") as follows:

$$\begin{array}{l} \text{Profits or reserves derived from taxed or taxable income:} \\ \text{Profits or reserves derived from non-taxed or taxable income:} \end{array} \quad \begin{array}{l} D \times R \\ D \times (100 - R) \end{array}$$

SECTION 3

You must allocate the dividend to those profits or reserves derived from taxed or taxable income first then followed by those derived from non-taxed or non-taxable income on a first in first out (FIFO) basis. Therefore you will only be able to match a dividend against profits derived from non-taxed or non-taxable income once all the taxed or taxable profits or reserves have been exhausted.

PART 2 - Calculation of tax credit and gross assessable dividend per accounting period

The purpose of Table 2 is to enable the calculation of the tax credit only in respect of the dividend derived from taxed or taxable sources of income, which will represent the set-off available to the beneficiary.

Guidance on the completion of Table 2SECTION 1

You need to re-enter the information in respect of the accounting periods in which there are retained profits or reserves available for distribution, from Section 1 of Table 1 in column [A], and the taxed or taxable portion of the total net dividend identified in Section 3 of Table 1 in column [B].

SECTION 2

The tax rate for the year of assessment for which the respective accounting period forms the basis period must be entered. The tax rates for the past twenty years of assessment are listed next to Table 2 but you may contact this Office on Tel. Nos. 20074889 or 20074915 or by email at income.tax@gibraltar.gov.gi if older rates are required.

The tax rates provided are the 'full' corporation tax rates that were applicable. You may have been eligible for a reduced rate of tax either by virtue of being a small company or being eligible for start up relief. If you are unsure of what rate should apply you should contact this Office on contact details provided above.

SECTION 3

The corresponding tax credit for the accounting period is the difference between the gross assessable dividend in Section 4 (calculated as explained below) and the taxed or taxable portion of the net dividend in column [B] of Section 1.

You may find it helpful to calculate the gross assessable dividend first and then use this to ascertain the corresponding tax credit.

SECTION 4

The gross assessable dividend for each respective accounting period is calculated using the following formula:

$$\text{Taxed/ taxable portion of net dividend per accounts} = \frac{100}{(100 - \text{Applicable tax rate for accounting period})}$$

The taxed/taxable portion of net dividend per accounts is the amount per column [B] of Table 2.

PART 3 - Details of dividends received by shareholder(s)

The purpose of Table 3 is to provide this Office with the full details of both the dividend paid to the beneficiary and their personal details to enable this income to be taxed accordingly.

Guidance on the completion of Table 3

1. You are required to provide the full name and address of each shareholder who is in receipt of a dividend from the company. Shareholders will only be liable to tax on the dividend income received in respect of that dividend derived from a taxed or taxable source of income.
2. The taxpayer reference number of each of the shareholders in receipt of dividend income from the company must be provided. In the instance that the shareholder has not previously been registered with the Income Tax Office, this should be done immediately so that a reference number may be allocated to them and to ensure that the correct taxation is applied.
3. You are required to record the number of shares held by each shareholder. The total number of shares in Table 3 should equal the total number of shares issued by the company. This should agree to the number of issued shares stated in the corporate tax return (Form CT1).
4. The totals of the net assessable dividend, tax credit and gross assessable dividend should be taken from the total boxes in Table 2 (or from the totals per the corresponding additional sheets).
The analyses of the above between each shareholder in receipt of a dividend should be proportionally based on their respective shareholding.
5. The date of payment of the dividend to each individual shareholder must be provided.

IMPORTANT

Please ensure that all the information stated in Table 3 is correct and complete (including calculations taken from other tables within this form). If the information in this table is neither correct or complete then this may lead to the beneficiaries of the dividend income being incorrectly assessed. The Income Tax Office will not assume responsibility for any errors occurring as a result of incorrect or incomplete information being filed.

PART 4 - Additional sheets used in completing the return

Please put an 'X' in the boxes provided, indicating which additional sheets have been used in completing this return of dividends.
